Trash Gordon wins! The name did not receive a majority of votes, but it appeared on the most number of ballots. It was close, too! Trash Gordon only won by 71 votes.

Explaining the colors: Yellow means that name was in the lead during that round. Blue means that name was in second during that round. Purple means that name was in third during that round.

Exhausted votes?: These are the ballots that dropped off in each round because they did not rank a remaining candidate. For example, in round 2 there are 12 exhausted votes because 12 people only selected Butch as the truck name and made no other choices. So their votes were not redistributed to other candidates. Instead, those 12 votes were exhausted.

Vin No Diesel wins! The name did not receive a majority of votes, but it appeared on the most number of ballots.

Why 10 Rounds? The Other Electric Truck Was 11 Rounds. In round 4, both Shirley and Plug Life finished with the same number of votes, so they both were eliminated and both of their votes were redistributed to other candidates.

Explaining the colors: Yellow means that name was in the lead during that round. Blue means that name was in second during that round. Purple means that name was in third during that round.

Exhausted votes?: These are the ballots that dropped off in each round because they did not rank a remaining candidate. For example, in round 4 there are 5 exhausted votes because 5 people only selected Joule of the Streets, Electro, or Power Ballad as their truck name choices and made no other picks. This means their votes could not be redistributed to other candidates. So, these 5 votes were exhausted.
